

Newsletter of the Year was initially sponsored by Hacker Instruments and awarded by the National Society of Histotechnologists until it was discontinued in 2016. The NSH Awards Committee selected the newsletter that they felt best met the criteria for clarity, content, neatness and aesthetics.

1. Reflected state, regional, and national news (clarity).
2. Had articles that were beneficial to the histology laboratory and are were fully referenced (content).
3. Edited such that all entries were clear and to the point. Grammatical errors should be absent (neatness).
4. Presented itself in an attractive manner throughout the issue.

The editor received a plaque/certificate with a $500.00 grant to the state society. The Mikro-Graf was a frequent recipient of this award throughout its history.
